

phn
MURRUMBIDGEE

An Australian Government Initiative

Well People, Resilient Communities across the Murrumbidgee

Alison Koschel – Senior Planner and Data Analyst

Ali Koschel has an extensive background in health research and population health planning with expertise and qualifications including epidemiology, biostatistics, nursing and health promotion. Ali has experience in both the acute health and primary care sector. Her PhD from the University of Newcastle is Secondary Prevention in Cardiovascular Disease a multifactorial randomised controlled trial in General Practice. Ali is responsible for health needs assessment using both local, State and National health statistics and consultations with community and health care professionals in order to identify and prioritise health needs, data monitoring and service planning. Ali is passionate about supporting vulnerable communities.